PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS

CHARLES ANDRESON

On behalf of the Class of 1965, I should like to welcome you, our parents, teachers, and friends, to our final meeting as a class. It may be that we shall be the last class, or at least the next to the last class, to have the privilege of holding Class Day exercises in these sumptuous surroundings.

When we entered Classical High School in September, 1962, we knew only our old junior high classmates, and it was with them that we fretted over the prospect of three-year stay. It did not take us many weeks to make new acquaintances, and we rapidly became active members of the student body. As we came to know Classical, we grew proud of her and tried, in and out of school, to act as true Classicalites. As students here we have worked hard, but, along with the work, we have had many enjoyable experiences that will provide pleasant memories for years to come.

As we look forward to college, to the armed services, to jobs, we are conscious that we owe our parents, who have inspired us, and our teachers, who have instructed us, our deepest gratitude. They will share with us whatever our ultimate success in life. Let us now look back at the highlights of the Class of 1965.

Charles Andreson

CLASS HISTORY

PAULA BERGIN

Like Caesar's Gaul our stay on Irving Street has been divided into three parts — our sophomore, junior and senior years. Each one of these years brings back special, nostalgic memories of its own.

When we first entered Classical in 1962, none of us knew very much about the substitute cafeteria at Lano's, bus tickets were only ninety cents, and the "Our Father" was still constitutional. Some of us expected to find hour glasses in the classrooms instead of electric clocks, but conditions were not nearly so bad as rumor had them.

Because we were lowly sophomores, we felt restricted to informal extracurricular activities which included climbing the stairs to our third-floor homerooms and jaywalking on the way to the "Y." Yet not all of us remained in obscurity. Carol Dorfman became a celebrity when somebody started a fire with her gym suit, and we were forced to make our first great exodus into the rain.

Like loyal Classicalites we attended the Senior Variety Show in March. At "The Gift of Music" we experienced a most unforgettable evening of spontaneous humor. Later in the year, Marilyn Swartz and Eric Yoffie made their dramatic debuts in the Senior Play, "You Can't Take It With You." In June our class was well-represented on the honor roll. Paul Arsenault, Cynthia Asher, Anne Beard, Paula Bergin, Peter Bilizarian, Stan Greenberg, Larry Kegeles, Tommy Mattimore, Jerry Morse, Liz Oginsky, Hank Payne, Joel Rosen, and Eric Yoffie all received four A's.

As the end of the school year approached we steadily increased our knowledge of Tiger traditions, but we were not deemed worthy of becoming juniors until we had survived the senior rehearsals of "Salitube." We were sustained during this week-long ordeal solely by the thought of having the entire summer to recuperate. When we returned to school in September, we were eager to move down to our second-floor homerooms.

Once we settled back into our scholastic routine, we voted for junior class officers. Charlie Andreson was elected president, Cynthia Bergstedt, vice-president; Marylee Houle, secretary; and Mike Backer, treasurer. With the publication of the "Argus" in October Paula Bergin, Midge Chervin, Jerry Morse, Chris Nigro, Hank Payne, Joel Rosen, and Sylvia Thamel became regular members of the Literary Board. Charlie Andreson and Greg Mahan were key players on our predominately senior football team which won the Class A Championship.

As juniors we had a preliminary encounter with the College Boards. Parts of the verbal section in the "essay tease" were so easy to understand that they might as well have been written in hieroglyphics, but some of us were unable to resist filling in all the boxes on our answer sheets. If our scores had only resembled our blood pressures, our worries would have been at an end.

In March we forgot about the importance of getting 700's long enough to enjoy ourselves at the Senior Variety Show, "Moments to Remember." Ringo Starr should have been there to see Alan Sherr and his shaggy-haired group swing into action.

When the Service Club Essays were judged, Noah Mandell was awarded second prize in the city-wide competition. Our cheerleaders also placed second in the annual contest at David Prouty High School in Spencer. Classmates of ours who were on the team included Sally Bates, Cynthia Bergstedt, Karen Freedman, and Gale Thurston.

In May the Junior Prom was held at the Hillcrest Country Club. As the Queen, Carol McLaughlin had a delightful evening reigning over our "Enchanted Isle." Cynthia Bergstedt, Joyce Bloomfield, Paula Miskinis, Carol Seega, Gale Thurston, and Carolyn Wolk were members of the royal court.

Thanks to the efforts of Mike Miller and Neil O'Leary we had an unusually successful season in tennis as we placed third in New England. While the boys were busy with their rackets, Liz Oginsky and Ricky Sandler were rehearsing their parts for the upcoming Senior Play, "Our Hearts Were Young and Gay." At the graduation exercises in June, Tommy Mattimore received the Harvard Book Prize; Paula Bergin, the Aletheia Prize; and Hank Payne, the John D. McKinley Book Prize.

The summer months passed quickly, and we began our final year at 222 485 by voting for a new slate of class officers. Charlie Andreson was elected president, Gale Thurston, vice-president; Linda Davidson, secretary; and Mike Backer, treasurer. Shortly afterwards, we learned that Larry Kegeles, Tommy Mattimore, and Joel Rosen had been named Semi-Finalists in the National Merit Scholarship Program. Jimmy Barron, Cynthia Drougen, Stan Greenberg, Larry Joseph, Noah Mandell, Peter Ostrow, Hank Payne, Alan Sherr, Lucien Teig, and Eric Yoffie all received letters of commendation.

Our football players were led onto the gridiron by Charlie Andreson and Greg Mahan, the only starters who were returning from our Worcester County Championship Team of 1963. Although we had a rather dismal season, both the boys received All-City Awards for their outstanding performances.

Before we knew it, we were back donating more money to the College Board people. If the funds in Princeton, New Jersey failed to surpass those at Fort Knox, it was through no fault of ours. While we were getting ready to take the achievement tests, we were also busy filling out college applications. Once we mailed the completed forms, most of us were free to worry until we received the final decisions in April.

November was unofficially declared tiger evacuation month, as the firemen came to visit us several mornings in a row. Whenever a bell rang, we began to wonder whether it was just another bomb scare or whether it was something really unusual like the beginning of first period. In December a resolution to preserve the name of Classical was defeated by a School Committee vote of 5-2, and the Mayor left Noah Mandell somewhat disillusioned. Larry Kegeles was selected as a clarinet player for the 1965 All-Eastern Orchestra.

A turn-away crowd supported the Senior Hop in February, and the dance was a stunning success partly because our "Anti-Poverty Bill" had a no refund clause. Under the able direction of Ricky Sandler and the executive committee, the Senior Variety Show was presented at Burncoat Junior High. "Many Happy Returns" was quite an eventful celebration of Classical's 120th birthday.

For a change of pace "Twelve Angry Men" was chosen as the Senior Play. The "dramatis personae" was lengthened to include a few females, and as usual Bobo purchased a patron's ticket. Ricky Sandler, Marilyn Swartz, and Eric Yoffie had leading roles in the production.

With the passing of this week's activities our stay at Classical draws to a close. The Senior Prom and Graduation will be added to our memories of three wonderful years, and we shall all look forward to playing "Who's Who" at our 25th reunion.

CLASS WILL – 1965

LAWRENCE JOSEPH

We, the Class of 1965 of Classical High School, of the City and County of Worcester and the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, being in sound health of body, mostly from hiking up and down Salitube's awesome and ancient stairs, and our minds as brilliant as always, and mindful of the uncertainty of graduation, and intending to dispose of all our property of whatsoever kind and nature upon our scheduled departure, do hereby make, publish, and declare this to be our Last Will and Testament, hereby revoking, of course, all former wills or codicils by us at any time made, of which there have been many.

The Class of 1965 bequeathes the following conglomeration of itemized bequests in the form of poor puns, meretriciously synthetic metaphors, unmistakably free verse, and obviously forced rhyme:

To our Faculty, amidst a shower of tears,
We leave, besides the same thanks and appreciation Bequeathed by classes for one hundred twenty years,
The services of a merchant of photographa-tion
To take new pictures of them for *Classic
Myths* of future years.
To the Faculty also, we leave the Junior Class,

And to the Junior Class, the Faculty, wishing Lots of luck to both.
They will surely need it.

To Mr. Charbonneau, noble teacher of French,
A photo of France's favorite pin-up: Charles DeGaulle;
Plus a written guarantee that he is not
A famous seventeenth century French author,
Who, at age fifty-one, was destined to fall.
To Miss Shaughnessy, mentor of Room Four,
We leave a pair of tickets to her favorite movie—Lord Jerm;

Not to mention autographs of the vaudeville
Team of Guidencrantz and gentle Rosen-stern.

Or is it Rosencrantz and gentle Guilden-
stern?

To Mr. Weed, magnanimous teacher of Biology,

"Eye of newt, and toe of frog,
Wool of bat, and tongue of dog,
Adder's fork, and blindworm's sting,
Lizard's leg, and howlet's wing."

Linda Davidson leaves her memories
Of happy days at Chandler Junior High,
And Room Two leaves to Mr. Brooks
A clock which always reads 8:05.

To Mr. Koki we leave an "of course," or three or six.

Jerry Morse bequeathes his giant sweater collection
To an unknown teacher in Room Five.
To Mr. Foley we leave one and a half—
Of everything;
And to Mrs. Greene, we leave to memorize
The following verses before her eyes:
"By the rude launching pad, chewing her
cud,

Her tail to April's breeze unfurled,
A cow in an Atlas missile stood,
To become the first herd shot 'round the world."
To Mr. Jack Bent, we leave the cow.
Gale Thurston, gracious Class V.P.,
Loyal supporter of the G.O.P.!
Bequeathes to Mr. Yoffe threescore buttons
Bearing the name and picture of Barry
Goldwater,

May he rest in peace.
A genuine, used only once, plaster-of-Paris leg cast
Is left by Sylvia Thamel, the courageous girl with the crutch!
And Paula Kotseas, girl without a crutch, Sadly leaves her most valued possession, her prized hairbrush.

Michael Backer, Senior Class Treasurer,
Leaves with more money than when he came,
And Noah, dauntless Noah leaves in mourning
Upon the death of Classical's sacred and holy name.

Paula Bergin and Joel Rosen, Argus editors,
Leave an infinite net of rationality;
Whatever that is.
And Charlie Andreson leaves his captain—and presidencies to the Class of '66.

Thus we, the Class of 1965, do hereby sign seal, publish, and declare the foregoing instrument as and for our Last Will and Testament, in our presence and in the presence of each of us, and in the presence of witnesses, in their presence and in the presence of each of them, and as Shakespeare always said, "Exeunt omnes," or, "We all have to go sometime."

Lawrence Joseph,
Testator

given positions as witnesses, because they all have, in one way or another, joined the ranks of the unemployed during the past year:

CLASS ORATION

JAMES LAURIE

AN AGE OF IRONY

How much, I wonder, in three years at Classical High School have you learned about the Drupe Fruits . . . I mean in particular the PEACH? I am referring to "Pruus Persica," both clingstone and freestone. If you were to engage in picking peaches you might come across that variety . . . big, fat, round, ripe, and fleshy. But upon probing beneath the fuzzy yellow covering, as chance would have it, you might find that this particular drupe had been dropped, leaving its innards badly bruised and blackened, yet you would swear you had picked a real Elberta, a real peach! IRONIC ISN'T IT? The best-looking fruit is not necessarily the best. All is not as it appears.

There is, too, a grim irony about the decade of the twentieth century; about this age in which we live. The age is surely one of amazing advancement, yet despite our progress and the outward appearance of prosperity within the corporate life of America, the inner life of our human family is bruised by a blackening moral and spiritual decay. Certainly our technological advancement is startling. We look toward new horizons of scientific progress in our attempts to control the heavens yet, at the same time, we falter in our efforts to hold firm the reins of things terrestrial. We toss a 200 million dollar tin can and a few cameras at the moon and the thrilling venture prospers us all. Economically no people has ever known such prosperity. Yet, we remain dissatisfied, ill at ease, lacking in confidence, spiritually chilled and hungry. We live in what John Kenneth Galbraith calls the "Affluent Society" and still remain unsatisfied. Clearly he who said that "Man does not live by bread alone" was never more correct.

Our great task of the future is to synchronize our ever-increasing material growth with a moral and spiritual code similarly well advanced. It is not difficult to see our society, greatly lagging in moral and spiritual effort. We are given evidence: noxious growth of juvenile delinquency, student violence on and off campus, racial strife both North and South, callous indifference to crime as too many find themselves cowardly passive witnesses to corruption and even murder, apathy and corruption rampant in public office, and the softness of our generation content to seek no more in life than what is euphemistically called leisure. We are too often reminded that we overplay, over-drink, over-eat, that we are over-entertained, over-sexed and under-exercised. Our new password for life is non-involvement. We are content to live in a world of fantasy and cringe at the thought of becoming personally involved with anything. Like the bruised peach we seem just to be too thin skinned and much too fat, over ripe and juicy.

More than any other age, our society can be characterized by confusion, uncertainty, and apprehension. We must fill the spiritual void in America today. We must place our concerted effort here. The health of our culture depends on us. It is not as if we did not have a clear vision of our desired ends. We have a goal to reach and a national purpose. We want an end to hunger, an end to race discrimination, an end to crime and social maladjustment, an end to disease and human suffering, an end to ignorance, prejudice, and meanness of spirit, an end to fear. We must recapture our faith and our moral strength. We want to maintain our heritage of a vital, virile, and active nation. Stated positively, we do have a goal devoutly desired. It is peace in freedom.

Certainly absence of purpose is not our dilemma, but rather our problem is the frustration resulting from the failure of the means.

Our national problems in this century have with the passage of time become so complex that it is not easy for the individual to see what he can do about them. The tasks facing the frontiersman two centuries ago may have been grim, but they were obvious. Each man as an individual knew what he must do. But what can a man of today do about the far-reaching problems facing our society? Much faith can be placed in the indomitable will and courage of the human spirit through which man is capable of finding his way out of strange and alien darkness. But, the answers are never self-evident and solutions come only as the result of tedious effort. As Class Orator I would not be so naive as to suggest that you, the Class of 1965, will in these matters solely shape America's destiny. No, not even I would claim that you will be supermen. But it is vital that you and I and all Americans realize that our nation's future will not be determined by our immense physical and material power, but by the spiritual and moral health of each one of us. It is within our power to determine this health through our individual commitment to peace in freedom.
